Caution For Young Men.

Mr. Andrew Carnegie gives the following advice intended for young men, but which older men may heed to their advantage:

"There are three great rocks ahead of the practical young man who has his feet upon the ladder and is beginning to rise. First, drunkenness, which, of course, is fatal. There is no use of wasting time upon any young man who drinks liquor, no matter how exceptional his talent. Indeed, the greater his talents are, the greater the disappointment must be.

The second rock ahead is speculation. The business of a speculator and that of a manufacturer or man of affairs are not only distinct, but incompatible. To be successful in the business world, the manufacturer's and the merchant's profits only should be sought. The manufacturer should go forward steadily, meeting the market price. When there are goods to sell, sell them; when supplies are needed, purchase them, without regard to the market price in either case. I have never known a speculative manufacturer or business man who scored a permanent success. He is rich one day, bankrupt the next. Besides this the manufacturer aims to produce articles, and in so doing to employ labor. This furnishes a laudable career. A man in this avocation is useful to his kind. The merchant is usefully occupied in distributing commodities; the banker in providing capital.

The third rock is akin to speculation—endoring. Business men require irregular supplies of money, at some times little, at others enormous sums. Others being in the same condition, there is strong temptation to endorse mutually. This rock should be avoided. There are emergencies, no doubt, in which men should help their friends, but there is a rule that will keep one safe. No man should place his name upon the obligation of another if he has not sufficient to pay it without detriment to his own business. It is dishonest to do so. Men are trustees for those who have trusted them, and the creditor is entitled to all his capital and credit. For one's own firm, your name, your fortune, your sacred honor, but for others, no matter under what circumstances, only such aid as you can render without damage to your trust. It is a safe rule, therefore, to give the cash direct that you have to spare for others, and never your endorsement or guarantee."

Some one has well remarked that the sharpest test of a man's character is in his treatment of what is in his power and wholly below him. Motives of self-interest are sufficiently strong and numerous to produce irreproachable conduct toward superiors or equals in strength or knowledge or station or wealth or intelligence. They have it in their power to defend themselves from our attacks, to bring us to account for our misdoings, to resist injuries, to reward benefits. Much of what renders our lives valuable is in their hands to bestow or to withhold. When, therefore, we so order our conduct as to conciliate and please those who can thus control our happiness and welfare, it may be a token of intelligence, but not necessarily of noble character. When, however, we come into relation with those who have no such power, who must accept without appeal what we choose to give them, who have no more substantial reward to bestow than gratitude or affection, and no severer penalty than secret and impotent wrath, we show something of our true selves by the way in which we treat them.

The rapid increase of the wealth, business and prosperity of the United States during the past ten years, says the Boston Manufacturers' Gazette, is simply marvelous. According to the published figures, the total wealth of the country is now $61,450,000,000, equal to nearly $1,000 per capita. This is an increase in 10 years of $18,000,000,000, or 42 per cent. England's wealth in 1885 was given at $50,000,000,000. The average of wealth per head in England is $1,545, in Scotland $1,215, in Ireland but $565. The total wealth of France is estimated at $30,000,000,000. England exacts in taxes $20 per head of population, while each individual in the United States pays but $12.50. America will produce 7,000,000 tons of iron this year, while England's greatest production is 8,600,000 tons.

We regret that hundreds of our subscribers, who owe from one to five years' subscription and some for a longer period, did not take advantage of our liberal offer made during the latter part of June for the month of July.—Cattlettsburg Democrat.

An editor who will send his paper five years and longer without getting anything for it must be a very rich or a very charitable man. If he don't go to Heaven, who will?—Jesse's Journal.

Easily answered. The business manager, who trots around and tries to collect a dime for that five year's subscription.

Visitor.—What is that which no man wants, no man has and no man can get rid of?
Small Boy.—My sister Mary.

Salt Every Day.

Dairy cattle should have access to salt every day, and salt should be added to their stable feed. A series of experiments has convinced me that when cows are denied salt for a period of even one week they will yield from 14 to 17 per cent less milk, and that of an inferior quality. Such milk will on an average turn sour in 24 hours less time than milk drawn from the same or similar cows receiving salt, all other conditions of treatment being equal. Comfortable quarters are indispensable to the health and well-being of cows. Stables during the winter should have a temperature constantly within the range of 40 to 55 degrees Fahrenheit. In summer time a shade should be provided in the pasture fields or adjacent thereto to protect against the bristling influence of July and August suns. In all the management of cows such conditions should be provided and such care given as will insure excellent health and apparent contentment. When practicable milking should be done by the same person, with regularity as to time. He only that bath clean hands should be allowed to milk a cow. I say "he" because I think the men of the farm should do all the milking, at least during the winter months. I have exercised the right of changing my mind on that subject since I left the farm. It is no more difficult to milk with dry hands than with wet. It is certainly more cleanly, and leaves the milk in a much more desirable condition for table or manufacture. Pure stable atmosphere is indispensable to prevent contamination from that source. Immediate straining will remove impurities which otherwise might be dissolved, to the permanent injury of the whole product.—Orange Judd.

The big, pear-shaped diamond pendant which Anna O'Keefe wears dangling from her garter in the costume of the page in The Brigands has attracted considerable attention, says the Chicago Herald's New York letter. Some one in the audience the other night said: "Look at the chandelier pendant little Keefe is wearing." In reality it is a fine yellow diamond, which was one of the French crown jewels and of whose history the young singer is rather proud. It hangs from a gold ring which is thrust through the garter, and at every movement of her pretty leg it shoots forth its golden light. She is also the possessor of a beautiful white sapphire and some fine opals, which she declares have brought her luck. In fact, she says that everything that brings ill luck to others means good fortune for her. Thus, Friday is her lucky day and 13 has no horror for her. She also dotes on seeing the moon over her left shoulder, and really enjoys breaking looking glasses. In one respect she is a remarkable young woman—she doesn't believe that she is the coming prima donna of the comic opera stage.

HOODED SEAL.—An interesting denizen of the ice-fields off the Greenland and Labrador coasts in the stenonatus, or hooded seal. This is an ungainly beast, often larger than an ox. He lies in a great heap on the ice and is much the color of soot. On days when the sun is strong, as the spring advances, the oil fairly oozes out of his glistening skin. I have sometimes seen him lying so still, and bathed in his perspiration of oil, that I imagined him dead and "rendering" out in the heat. The seal hunters call him the "dog hood," because he has a huge hood or membrane consisting of blubber and a tough tissue several inches thick, which over his head. He is then safe from all ordinary assault, being shielded all over the body by several inches thick of blubber or fat, through which the heavy shot of the seal-hunters' guns cannot reach vital parts. The greenhorn delights to capture the pelt of a dog hood, but the experienced hunter is just as content to let the ugly brute alone.—Harper's Young People.

The African Problem.

The solution of the African problem is not yet. It is one thing to cast lots for African provinces, but quite another to realize them when cast. A deadly climate, dark jungles and vast deserts, to say nothing of the treacherous African himself, are all potential agents to bar the progress of greater forces perhaps than even England and Germany can employ. And then it is by no means certain that the German eagle and the British lion are to live peaceably together in Africa. Their interests are widely apart; and besides, the latter is not likely to forgive the German for presuming upon taking half of these stolen honors. The protectorate at Zanzibar may yet prove to have been a poor exchange for Heligoland; and even if the cession of the latter place does not cost the life of the Tory ministry, it is by no means impossible that it soon will provoke a peremptory summons from France to terminate the occupation of Egypt.—Harper's Weekly.

"Your account has been standing a long time, Mr. Dukey." "Then give it a seat, my dear Shears." "Very glad to sit; shall we make it a receipt?"—Harper's Bazar.

CRAB ORCHARD.

—To You.—We want what you owe us. We mean you, Chadwick & Edmiston.

—Singer & Carson have opened up a furniture department adjoining their dry goods store.

—The cool weather of the past week has diminished to some extent the number of guests at the Springs. Chief Clerk D. B. Edmiston tells us, however, that there are about 275 there yet, and that the stream of gaiety is as fresh as ever.

—The ladies of the Christian church have been repairing and retinting their house of worship, for which (as they did all themselves) they deserve unstinted praise. It is now indeed a "fit shrine for the pious worshiper to hold communion with his Maker."

—The public school opened Monday with 33 pupils in the advanced department and 32 in the primary. Miss Ida Pettus has temporary charge of the juveniles until Prof. Smith's daughter arrives from Ohio, who is expected next week and will assist her father during the entire term. The Academic department promises also to be well patronized.

—Mr. George W. Miller, who was born and reared here in Crab Orchard, but who went West 21 years ago and settled in the then sparsely populated parts of Western Kansas, has gotten to be a millionaire and is now acknowledged the greatest cattle shipper in the West. Mr. Miller married a sister of Mrs. S. A. Brooks, of this place, and has other connections in Lincoln who will be proud to hear of his great good fortune.

—Dr. and C. A. Reid, Sr., left for Middleboro this week, where they go to superintend the sale of a fine tract of mineral land, lying contiguous to the "Magic City." The tract comprises about 350 acres, and they expect to realize something in the vicinity of $100 per acre. Mr. Reid says that 15 years ago he offered to take $700 for the whole business, but is very glad now that he had the good fortune not to dispose of it.

—Those who sat up Saturday night in the soft, voluptuous summer air, and listened to the dulcet notes of the cornet band, will no longer deny that the boys can make exquisite music. It was a rare display of our home-born talent, and the feeling as well as the unfeeling soul enjoyed it. Mr. Berney Fish, the leader of the band, tho' young, evinces a remarkable aptitude for music and is rapidly leading the band toward the standard of excellence.

—This is the way that the first stanza of Poe's celebrated poem of the "Raven" now read to a couple of young men here, who went calling on their lady loves a few nights since, and who lingered so long that the good housewife had to admonish them that it was time for all honest folks to be at roost:

Once upon a night delicious,
While we sat engaged in precious
Converse with the gentle dame,
That our hearts do most adore;
While a smiling and a cooing,
With our tongues gleefully clacking,
Suddenly there came a knocking,
Knocking at the parlor door.
And a small voice shouted sharply,
"Bed-time boys! be gone, and Give the girls a little chance to snore."

—Mr. Curtis Gover desires to make some corrections as to the account of the racket between him and B. G. Gover, which appeared in your last issue and which seemed to be a one-sided statement. A year ago the two gentlemen had a disagreement about some business matters and as they were partners, B. G. Gover turned over the management of his part of the business to Jack Gover, his brother, and Jack and Curtis were to conduct the business independent of B. G. Gover. Wednesday B. G. Gover was here, and mentioned the fact to his brother Jack, that he was going to inspect the books. Jack advised him not to do it, as he had nothing to do with the business, and that bad feelings might be engendered thereby between him and Curtis. He consented, but went to the livery stable and asked Curtis how he traded for such and such a horse. Curtis replied that it was none of his business. One word led to another and Curtis seized a pitchfork and made at B. G. and gave him a blow with it. He was on the point of repeating it when Jack Gover rushed up and took hold of Curtis and endeavored to prevent further friction. 'Twas then that B. G. got out his penknife and used it on Curtis, making two slight skin wounds. The case was tried before a jury instead of the judge and Curtis was fined one cent and cost, the jury considering that B. G. Gover acted as if challenging a quarrel by speaking to Curtis, knowing the bad feelings existing between the two.

—Miss Maggie Martin, of Lancaster, was the guest of Miss Nellie Yantis this week. Mr. Tim W. Higgins, of Louisville, is spending a few days at C. O. Springs. Miss Ella Watson, Lancaster's fair postmistress, accompanied by Mr. Brown was in town this week visiting acquaintances. Miss Birdie Stevens left Saturday for Cincinnati, where she goes to attend the Conservatory of Music. Miss Nannie Kennedy is with her sister, Mrs. M. C. Williams, at Mt. Vernon. Mrs. Mammie Frye, of Hustonville, and Miss Maggie McKinney, of McKinney, have returned home after a pleasant visit to the Misses Stuart. The pretty and accomplished Miss Ida Adams, of Mt. Vernon, has been the guest of Mrs. Dr. J. S. Cooper this week. Miss Adams is a sister of the noted temperance lecturer, Mrs. Lula Nield, and in addition to this attraction is said to be a conversationalist of rare ability. She is regarded as the reigning belle of Rockcastle. Miss Bettie Higgins is in Somerset, visiting the family of her brother, and a certain gay gallant is complaining of the dryness of life. Miss Fannie Crawford has returned to her home in Rockcastle, delighted with her visit to Crab Orchard. Mr. James R. Lawless, of Lexington, is here, mingling with his former townsmen. He is as great a comedian as ever—in fact his wit has received some additional salt from his sojourn in the blue grass capital. Mr. Charley Shumate and wife, of Rowland, drove up Sunday and spent the day with Miss Mary Albright and took her pretty little sister, Miss Dessie, back with them for a week's visit. Miss Mary Bronnough, of Nicholasville, is visiting at R. H. Bronnough's. Mrs. Dr. W. M. Doores and little Miss Lola Holdam have returned from a week's visit to Mrs. Charley Spiegel, of Vincennes, Ind. Misses Sabra and Lela Hays are the guests of their aunt, Mrs. Catherine McAlister, Capt. J. R. Ward and wife, of Rural Retreat, Va., who were visiting the family of C. A. Reid, Jr., last week, has returned home. Mrs. Denny, of Somerset, is the guest of Mrs. Agnes Horon. Dr. C. A. Cox, of Stanford, was here this week. Col. Faulkner, of Richmond, one of the most prominent republicans in the State, passed through town Saturday. Mrs. Dr. Lasley, of McKinney, is the guest of Mrs. W. T. Stephenson. Mr. Charley Curtis and Miss Mary, are back from a visit to relatives at Somerset.

A notable horse race took place at Saratoga, Mich. It was gotten up by Parson Arney, of the Methodist church, to raise money for religious purposes. There was a great gathering at the driving park and when the parson drove in with his noted mare he was greeted with applause. All the booths sold things for the benefit of the church. The pastor addressed the people, saying the meeting was called in the interest of purer races, better stock and the upbuilding of the religious community. Then the trotting and running events came off amid the enthusiastic plaudits of the throng. Two of Parson Arney's horses won.

When the man who wants the earth goes into politics, he begins by taking the field.—Terre Haute Express.

FARM FOR SALE AT A BARGAIN.
On account of continued bad health, I desire to sell privately my farm of 200 acres of blue-grass land at a bargain, in a fine state of fertility. Would sell at 200 acres with improvements. Location one mile south of Stanford, and the laying of the farm is superb. There are all of the necessary improvements, including a frame dwelling at five rooms and bath, a large basement barn, and all buildings new. For further information, apply to R. O. McALISTER, Stanford.

'OLD DRIPPING SPRINGS'
Referring to an advertisement which appeared in last issue of the Interior Journal in regard to renting cottages at Old Dripping Springs, I wish to inform the public that since said article appeared I have again leased the Springs and buildings to D. G. Slaughter upon same conditions as contained in former lease between him and James L. Adams.

A SPLENDID

WASHINGTON CO. ORCHARD & GRAIN FARM
AT PRIVATE SALE.

To close a partnership, we offer at private sale our Farm of Nearly Five Hundred Acres.

Near Mooreville, Washington county.

This Farm is situated on the turnpike leading from Mooreville to Chaplin and is about 10 miles from Springfield, 7 miles from Bloomfield, 5 miles from Valley Hill, a depot on the railroad between Hardinsburg and Springfield, and about an hour's run from Louisville. There is on the Farm a good comfortable house of 4 rooms, the main building, a brick, having a year or so ago, a highly necessary farm buildings, consisting of stables, corn crib, granary, smoke house, buggy house, poultry house and yard and two large tobacco barns. A good portion of this land is in blue grass, timothy and clover and has a beautiful supply of never-failing water, well distributed in the different pastures and fields; and the whole is in a good state of cultivation. In short, it is a highly productive Farm, which the crops of grasses, grain and tobacco grown on it yearly attest. It is an incontrovertible fact that Washington county lands have been selling 25 to 30 per cent cheaper than lands of a like character in any other part of the State, and this undoubtedly been due to the fact that the county has been without railroads, until the past two years. No county in the State raises finer horses, cattle, line-grass, corn and tobacco. Our entire reason for selling this Farm is to close our partnership, and to a man wanting good land, well located, at a low price and on good terms, we will sell the cheapest in Kentucky. No use to go West, and you'll say so, when you see this land. To parties who might want this land we will say that it is a successful investment and we will sell it at a bargain. Call on us on the place or address us at Mooreville, Ky. (44-56) A. C. & JOHN TAYLOR.
